

Aluminum alloy junction box gaskets for fixing optical cables

Overview

The metal optical cable splice closure is made of aluminum alloy with perfect seal. Having been sealed with sealing ring and silicone, it could be opened, expanded, fixed, and connected repeatedly. It features in high mechanical strength, good airtight and anti-corrosive. The joint box is fiber splices. A pre-molded neoprene anti-aging gasket, sealing against dust and water-jets. Cable glands and a heavy wall OPGW cables. Loose storage space makes storage more conveniently, quickly and cable bending radius big enough, avoiding fiber optic extra loss and ensuring transmission. The ADSS/OPGW metal junction box is also called a splicing box that is designed to house the fiber core splices to the outdoor intermediate optical cable leading to the patch panel in the control room. Fiber-bending radius guaranteed more than 40mm.
